New York, July 14.—After occasional resistence to the decline, prices of stocks so. 2 off sharply late this afternoon to the lowest level of the year and the market closed active and weak with the de-clining tendency apparently in full force. clining tendency apparently in full force. The sharp recovery in the latter part of yesterday and a further advance in London this morning aroused some hopes that the fall in prices was ended, temporarily, at least. But the slight opening advances here attracted heavy selling and while there were later occasional checks to the decline there was no further attempt of consequence to put up prices. The selling was entirely based on general considerations and was chiffly interesting for its sources, which remained a mystery. Who it is who is selling such enormous amounts of stock and at such tremendous sacrifices based on any possible purchase price for two years past, is a subject of most earnest.

Wool Market.

Boston. July 14.—An improved demand, particularly for medium grades and a gradual strengthening of prices on bleece and other descriptions most wanted at the present time are the feature of the wool trade here. The American Woolen company, which operates thirty mills and a large proportion of the other manufacturers are in the market. The goods market is the only weak spot in sight. Recently, it is said, several manufacturers offered considerable quantities of low grade goods at about the same prices as last year. The wool trade has exceeded an advance.
